

ETHICS AND HUMAN INTERFACE → set of standards that society puts on itself to guide behaviour, choices and actions.

What is a human interface?

- an interface is a place where ideas meet, bend, synthesized, communicate with each other.

Essence, determinants and consequences of Ethics

What is essence?

- is an intrinsic nature or indispensable quality of something.
- Thus essence of ethics would be qualities that are indispensable, inherent to an ethical human. Without which one would become unethical.

Determinants of Ethics :

- these are certain factors or parameters on which we decide if any action/etc was ethical.
Ex. If the consequence was positive, intention being right.

There are various factors that determine our ethical behaviour: Ex. Knowledge, values, personality traits, social factors.

Consequences of Ethics in human actions

- it would be the result, effect caused by any ethical action. Ethical action or behaviour could have different consequences could be individual specific or for society a large. Ex. happiness, accomplishment, satisfaction, pleasure, Peace and harmony, Justice, inclusive development etc.

DIMENSIONS OF ETHICS:

- Dimensions mean features or elements of ethics.
- Various types of ethics that constitute any ethical behaviour are. Descriptive, normative, Meta Ethics, Applied ethics, Bio-ethics, Military ethics etc.

Ethics in private relationships:

- certain standards people follow in their private lines ex friends, family, community etc. Ex. loyalty, love, empathy, integrity, honesty, gratitude.

Ethics in Public relationship:

- values that a person adheres to in their professional lines. ex business dealings. Ex. of such values are: forthright communication, Accountability, Objectivity, Rationalism, excellence, compassion, Justice, National interest.